

“Poetry Matters”

with poet Tricia McCallum

Saturday, June 17, 2023 @ 7:30pm

Whitevale Arts and Culture Centre, 475 Whitevale Road, Whitevale, Ontario

*Why did I not grab every moment and make it sing,
look into people's faces and find stories there
to take me into my old age.
We don't take the time,
Do we?
Blithely we pass unexplored roads,
agonizing instead
about the trappings of our lives,
the matched sets of things.*

(For Keeps - excerpt)

Tricia McCallum

Always be a poet. Even in prose.

Poetry Reading and Sharing event

When? Saturday, June 17 at 7:30 pm

Where? the WACC, 475 Whitevale Rd

Why is it different?

Tricia McCallum, our resident poet, will not only share some of her poems, but she is inviting you to share a poem that has a special meaning for you.

Before this June rendez-vous, you have the opportunity to think ahead about which poem you will choose ... It may be the poem that first springs to mind whenever you hear the word poetry, or a poem that comforts you each and every time you reflect on it.

Tricia plans to share a variety of her poems. And as anyone who reads Tricia's work knows, she shares with us regularly online, what she writes about is ... everything. If you wish to participate in this poetry sharing event, email her at writer@triciamccallum.com

<https://www.triciamccallum.com/>